"If a 747 jetliner crashed every day, killing all 500 people aboard, there would be a national uproar over aviation safety and an all-out mobilization to fix the problem." However, "in the nation's hospitals...about the same number of people die on average every day from medical 'adverse events,' many of them preventable errors, such as infections or incorrect medications. Where's the outrage?" USA TODAY Editorial 11/19/10

Dear Chief Pitkow,

I am a lawyer in New Jersey, involved in a case with Mr. Lanterman as an expert witness. I understand that he was a former member of the Springfield Police Department. I also understand that he recently picked up his original personnel, sometime in February, on the pretext that he had a serious medical condition and wanted to show his family what he had done earlier in his career. I also understand that he has not yet returned the file to you, despite promises and representations that he would do so, and even that he had placed the file in the mail to you on March 1.

I have a hearing this morning at 10:00 am. I apologize for the late notice of this, but I hope that you are able to confirm that Mr. Lanterman's personnel file has not been returned as of today. Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter. It is greatly appreciated.

"[W]hat many of those who oppose the use of juries in civil trials seem to ignore [is that t]he founders of our Nation considered the right of trial by jury in civil cases an important bulwark against tyranny and corruption, a safeguard too precious to be left to the whim of the sovereign, or, it might be added, to that of the judiciary."
